Audubon Cottages of the New Orleans Hotel Collection reopen after multi-million dollar renovation offering “French Quarter Butler” service

NEW ORLEANS – April 2012 - The New Orleans Hotel Collection has announced the reopening of the famous and extremely exclusive Audubon Cottages, with the addition of luxury “French Quarter Butler” service at the property.

Guests of the Audubon Cottages receive a high level of unparalleled personalized service. These seven Cottages have a dedicated on-site “French Quarter Butler” to anticipate and cater to guests’ needs from the moment of arrival to the time of departure.

Daily assistance is provided to ensure the guest experience is enjoyable and unforgettable. Whether it’s unpacking suitcases or making dinner reservations at one of New Orleans’ best restaurants, French Quarter butlers are there to assist with creating a one-of-a-kind experience during a stay at our French Quarter Cottages.

About the Audubon Cottages

Deep within the boundaries of the historic French Quarter on quiet Dauphine Street, lies a treasure - a unique enclave of seven cottages accessed through a private gate, beyond a row of ancient crepe myrtles and through semi-tropical landscaped courtyards. These traditional French Creole cottages, named for naturalist, John James Audubon, who once resided here, are barely a block from the excitement of Bourbon Street, but guests of the exclusive retreat would swear they are a world away. The central location puts guests within a five minute stroll of the famous eateries of the Quarter: Antoine’s, Arnaud’s, Broussard’s, Acme Oyster House, Court of Two Sisters, Stella!, and many more. A few blocks further, visitors delight in the Steamboat Wharf, the Mississippi Riverfront, Jackson Square, the French Market, Café du Monde and other haunts frequented by writers and famous personalities over the years.

With privacy befitting the movie stars and politicians who frequent this unique French Quarter lodging, there are also personalized services reflecting the comforts expected: private deluxe continental breakfast service, specialized “French Quarter Butler” service, daily maid service with nightly turndown, lush terrycloth robes and towels, beautiful antiques, coupled with modern iPod docking stations, cube refrigerators and free wireless internet. Guests can also indulge in in-room spa services, provided by le Jardin Day Spa. With individual private patios surrounding a lush courtyard and large private saltwater pool, the Audubon Cottages offer a specialized, exclusive opportunity to enjoy the French Quarter in a fashion reminiscent of "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous!"
